Ventnor—"The English Madeira"—is a charming and popular seaside resort on the south coast of the Isle of Wight. Hills 800 feet high, giving magnificent land and sea views, shelter the town from cold winds. The climate is remarkably mild in winter and meteorological observations prove it to be exceptionally cool in summer. Sir James Clarke, in 1841, first called attention to the remarkable climate of Ventnor.

Printed in England.

Aloe! Say, hurrah! This is a record-breaking age! How would you like to go to Ventnor next winter?— Yes? Mary Ellen was here today for dinner. All our old friends are hunting us up. She is coming down to stay with Mrs Hood for a while. Grandma is very anxious about you jumping from that high spring-board. Be very careful. You can hit the bottom. Now Quick.
